At The Zoo

Someone told me,
It's all happening At The Zoo.
I do believe it,
I do believe it's true.

It's a light and tumble journey,
From the East Side to the park.
Just a fine and fancy ramble
To the zoo.

But you can take the crosstown bus,
If it's raining or it's cold,
And the animals will love it,
If you do, if you do.
Something tells me,
It's all happening At The Zoo.
I do believe it,
I do believe it's true

The monkeys stand for honesty,
Giraffes are insincere,
And the elephants are kindly, but They're dumb.
Orangutans are skeptical
Of changes in their cages,
And the zookeeper is very fond of rum.
Zebras are reactionaries,
Antelopes are missionaries,
Pigeons plot in secrecy,
And hamsters turn on frequently.
What a gas! You gotta come and see
At The Zoo.

—Paul Simon

Once upon a time there was an ivy-covered, cupola-ed, nonviolent school. The school was made up of students who managed to keep the administration guessing by being perceptively aware at certain times and reasonably bad at others. And they went through a lot of teachers (or a lot of teachers went through them). In that school it seemed teachers came and went like senior privileges. But once in a while an educator appeared who heard "Oh!, I see" more often than most, a teacher who cared about the feelings of a students.

A man came who said things about what our reading meant—things that we had never thought conceivable. And what was most terrifying of all was that it was true. And we'd never seen the light; never given a hint that there was another whole world to be opened up to us. His "task was to find a way to bring people and information together into a dynamic, evolving relationship which honors the integrity of man, the concerns of society, and the nature of knowledge itself. The primary focus, though, must always be on man. Man is the end. Subject matter is the means. Society is the result. Knowledge is power. Man needs to know."*

And this teacher loves man. The class of '73 has intimately befriended such an educator. We dedicate this book to:

The Road Not Taken

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both
And be one traveler, long I stood
And looked down one as far as I could
To where it bent in the undergrowth;

Then took the other, just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear;
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden back.
Oh, I kept the first for another day!
Yet knowing how way leads on way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood, and I—
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

Robert Frost

Pilgrim

This is a road
One walks alone;
Narrow the tracks
And overgrown.

Dark is the way
And hard to find,
When the last village
Drops behind.

Never a footfall
Light to show
Fellow traveler—
Yet I know

Someone before
Has trudged his load
In the same footsteps—
This is a road.

Anne Morrow Lindbergh

The Seagull

Floating on the wind
Sailing on a breeze
Spending all day long
Listening to the sea.

Lying on a wave
Like a flying kite
They float along the wind
In their lifelong flight.

"Next time I will . . ."
"From now I will . . ."
—What makes me think I am wiser today than I will be tomorrow?

Hugh Prather

While wandering through the vast ennui
I've come to a conclusion:
Though I find life so important to me
It's only a mere illusion.
I'm tired of living in hatred and strife
Where war is trying to smother,
I long to live in a world of peace
Where man can live as brothers.
People are funny and people are mean
And people try not to be giving,
They worry the poor and they pick on obscene
And yet they go on with their living.
I'm done with the world and with all its fears,
I'm so glad that the night is here.

JABBERWOCKY

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe;
All mimsy were the borogoves,
And more raths outgrabe.

"Beware the Jabberwock, my son!
The jaws that bite, the claws that catch!
Beware the Jubjub bird, and shun
The frumious Bandersnatch!"

He took his vorpal sword in hand:
Long time the manxome foe he sought.
So rested he by the Tumtum tree,
And stood awhile in thought.

And as in uffish thought he stood,
The Jabberwock with eyes of flame,
Came whiffling through the tulgey wood,
And burbled as it came!

One, two! One, two! And through, and through
The vorpal blade went snicker-snack!
He left it dead, and with its head
He went galumphing back.

"And hadst thou slain the Jabberwock?
Come to my arms, my beamish boy!
Oh, frabjous day! Callooh! Callay!"
He chortled in his joy.

Lewis Carroll

ISLANDS

Earth stream and tree encircled by sea
Waves sweep the sand from my island.
My sunsets fade.
Field and glade wait only for rain
Grain after grain love erodes my
High weathered walls which fend off the tide
Cradle the wind
to my island.

Gaunt granite climbs where gulls wheel and glide
Mournfully cry o'er my island.
My dawn bride's veil, damp and pale,
Dissolves in the sun.
Love's web is spun—cats prowl, mice run
Wreath snatch—hand briars where owls know my eyes.
Violet skies
Touch my island, touch me.

Beneath the wind turned wave
Infinite peace
Islands join hands
'Neath heaven's sea.

Dark Harbour quays like fingers of stone
Hungriely reach from my island.
Clutch sailor's words—pearls and gourds
Are strewn on my shore.
Equal in love, bound in circles.
Earth stream and sea return to the sea
Waves sweep the sand from my island,
from me.

The Guy in the Glass

When you get what you want in your struggle for pelf,
And the world makes you King for a day,
Then go to a mirror and look at yourself,
And see what that guy has to say.

For it isn't your Father, or Mother, or Wife
Who judgement upon you must pass,
The feller whose verdict counts most in your life
Is the guy staring back from the glass.

He's the feller to please, never mind all the rest,
For he's with you clear up to the end,
and you've passed your most difficult, dan-
gergous test,
If the guy in the glass is your friend.

You may be like Jack Horner and chisel a plum
And think you're a wonderful guy,
But the man in the glass says you're only a bum,
If you can't look him straight in the eye.

You can fool the whole world down the pathway of years,
And get pats on the back as you pass,
But your final reward will be heartache and tears,
If you've cheated the guy in the glass.

Gatsby believed in the green light, the orgiastic future that year by year recedes before us. It eluded us then, but that's no matter—tomorrow we will run faster, stretch out our arms farther . . . And one fine morning—

So we beat on, boats against the current, borne back ceaselessly into the past.

We are the music makers,
And we are the dreamers of dreams,
Wandering by lone sea-brakers,
And sitting by desolate streams;
World-losers and world-forsakers,
On whom the pale moon gleams,
Yet we are the movers and shakers,
Of the world forever, it seems.

And go round and round and round
in the circle game.

1. How terrifying in the night is the convex face of the black land!
2. Above the world are clouds; they belong to the world. Above the clouds is nothing.
3. The lonesome tree in the stony field must feel that everything is in vain. It has never seen a tree. There are no trees.
4. I keep thinking: we are not observed. Scurf of the only star in the night before it dies!
5. The warm wind still is busy making connections,
6. I seem very singular. I have no patience. Poor Brother That's—all said of the world: "It doesn't do anything."
7. We are traveling at high speed toward a star in the Milky Way. A great quiet is on the face of the earth. My heart is beating too fast. Otherwise everything is in order.

. . . It seems to me that everything on earth is bound to change by degrees and is already changing before our eyes. In two or three hundred, perhaps a thousand years—the time does not matter—a new, happy life will come. We shall have no share in that life, of course, but we are living for it, we are working, well, yes, and suffering for it, we are creating it—and that alone is the purpose of our existence, and is our happiness, if you like . . .

Your children are not your children.
They are the sons and daughters of Life's longing for itself.
They come through you but not from you,
And though they are with you yet they belong not to you.

You may give them your love but not your thoughts,
For they have their own thoughts.
You may house their bodies but not their souls,
For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, not even in your dreams.
You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you,
For life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday.

You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent forth.

Let your bending in the archer's hand be for gladness.

Student Council

People who have not had the esoteric privilege of being a Student Council member must wonder—what hushed administration secrets are revealed to these special few? Does the administration cower under the fierce onslaught of proposals put forth by the courageous representatives? Did Dr. Heath really bite his nails when confronted with the rampant injustice of the faculty? Well . . . maybe not.

But really, what does the Student Council do? They talk and adjourn and convene and talk again and make lists and tear them up and talk some more. And after they're done talking, the President says, "Does anyone have anything else to say?" And someone always does.

And if, by some divine blessing, a proposal is written up (in good English) and agreed upon, and submitted, if this ever should occur, then it must face the Administration, and the Faculty Meeting and the School Committee. Nothing could battle its way through these, least of all a feeble Student Council request.

Patty

Hang on to your hopes, my friends
That's an easy thing to say,
But if your hopes should pass away,
Simply pretend that you can build them again.
Look around;
The grass is high,
The fields are ripe:
It's the springtime of my life.
Seasons change with the scenery,
Weaving time in a tapestry.
Won't you stop and remember me,
At any convenient time?

Your books gave me wisdom. All that unwearying human thought created in the centuries is compressed to a little lump in my skull. I know that I am cleverer than you all.

And I despise your books, despise all wordly blessings and wisdom. Everything is void, frail, visionary and delusive as a mirage. Though you be proud and wise and beautiful, yet will death wipe you from the face of the earth like the mice underground; and your posterity, your history, and the immortality of your men of genius will be as frozen slag, burnt down together with the terrestrial globe.

You are mad and gone the wrong way. You take falsehood for truth and ugliness for beauty. You would marvel it suddenly apple and orange trees should bear frogs and lizards instead of fruit, and if roses should begin to breathe the odor of a sweating horse. So do I marvel at you, who have bartered heaven for earth. I do not want to understand you.

WITHIN YOU WITHOUT YOU

We were talking—about the space between us all
And the people—who hide themselves
behind a wall of illusion
Never glimpse the truth—then it's far too late—when they pass away.
We were talking—about the love we all could share—when we find it
To try our best to hold it there—with our love
With our love—we could save the world
—if they only knew.
Try to realise it's all within yourself
no-one else can make you change
And to see you're really only very small,
and life flows on within you and without you.
We were talking—about the love that's gone so cold and the people,
Who gain the world and lose their soul—they don't know—they can't see—are you one of them?
When you've seen beyond yourself—then you may find, peace of mind, is waiting there—
And the time will come when you see we're all one, and life flows on within you and without you.

-George Harrison
